1. 'This room is bathed in natural light so I opted for pale colours to enhance the sense of space. The walls are painted in Tracery with woodwork in Normandy Grey by Little Greene. The green-grey works well at all times of the day and year.' NICOLA HARDING, founder, Nicola Harding & Co

2. 'Pale green can refresh any room while adding a hint of nature. In this bedroom, we took inspiration from the landscape of Miami to create a calm, cosy feel – the light green grasscloth wallpaper by Kenneth James works perfectly.' NATALIA MIYAR, founder, Natalia Miyar Atelier

3. 'For this bathroom I chose Edward Bulmer's Celadon – it sits quietly with the marble, keeping the space open. Ideally the colour needs to be used in a natural light-filled room. It's a lovely shade to relax in for an evening bath, too.' CAROLINE RIDDELL, founder, Caroline Riddell Interiors

4. 'In this Georgian property, we worked with Francesca's Paints to match the original colour we found under the various layers. We've teamed it with light tones of off-white and light ochre, as well as slightly stronger accent colours.' JAMES THURSTAN WATERWORTH, founder, Thurstan
