1. 'We painted this dining room in Tyrian by Edward Bulmer Natural Paint. It evokes a feeling of cosiness and quiet glamour without being garish – perfect for a dining room. It is definitely a colour you can be bold with.' HENRY PRIDEAUX, founder, Henry Prideaux Interior Design

2. 'Purple is surprisingly versatile. Lighter shades promote relaxation in bedrooms, while deeper tones add elegance to living and dining rooms. Combining it with white gives a balanced look, while grey adds sophistication and depth.' FRANCESCA WEZEL, founder, Francesca's Paints

3. 'This was a small breakfast nook with a gorgeous view of the water. The rest of the house used cool blues, greys and oatmeal so I thought this was the perfect space to introduce colour. The bright purple is energising and uplifting.' JENNA CHUSED, founder, Chused & Co

4. 'This guest bedroom is painted in an imperial shade of purple, I like to call it purple haze, which brings drama but is also cosy. We used red striped wallpaper to further animate the room and highlight the shape of the ceiling.' RACHEL CHUDLEY, founder, Rachel Chudley Interior Design →

KITCHENS & BATHROOMS

7 NEUTRAL TERRITORY

A tone-on-tone neutral palette is anything but dull with strong injections of texture playing a quietly disruptive role. 'We love using all neutrals for a bathroom space as they're calming and warm,' says Amy Dalrymple, creative director, Dalrymple Studio. 'This bathroom was inspired by California with soft tones and bold textures to bring the small space to life.'
